

Default Behavior

What is the system's default behavior if a bystander is in the recorded frame?

WHAT?

Obfuscation

Obfuscation as the camera device's default behavior means that at first no one is identifiable, i.e., all faces are pixelated. Explicit agreement is required to capture a person. Therefore, Melanie informs Patrick's lifelogging camera via a specified communication channel that she wants to be recorded by the camera. This is called "Opt-in". Participants who, like Grandpa Anton, do not have access to this communication channel cannot communicate their consent.

Default Behavior

Impulses

How do I tell the system that I want to be recognizable on the recordings? Do I need a device for that? If I provided consent to a recording, can I withdraw it retrospectively?

There are cards to help you finding an answer to Melanie's questions. Have a look at these categories:

Communication: Channel

Participation: Timing

Participation: Inclusion & Exclusion

